

Go Ahead...Kiss My Style!

By Beth Anderson on January 15, 2009 12:01 AM

Kiss My Style is an online boutique featuring unique handcrafted pieces by amazing designers and artists across the US and Canada. Not only does Megan Calpin Hughes own Kiss My Style, she also designs for it too. Her hand knits and other crafts are featured throughout the site.

Megan's background is in commercial interior design with a small obsession with Art History. In 2001 she picked up her first set of needles and in 2003 she started showing my pieces at local craft shows. In 2005 she created a website for my knits - It became a wonderful outlet for her work and she decided to expand my business to include other people's creative pieces. Megan wanted to create a place that would showcase fabulous gifts, with the ease and luxury of shopping from your home. In 2007 Kiss My Style was born.

"I have always been a crafter. Since my mom put the first pack of crayons in my hand, the bug bit and the effect was lifelong. Inspiration comes from color, fiber, fabric, the outdoors, family, friends...the list goes on and on. I love to look at something and think about how I can design it into what I imagine," says Megan.

My best sellers are my scarves. I choose very unique fibers & I love hand dyed yarns - the color combinations and texture combinations make them POP! The success is that shoppers contact me for custom pieces , sweaters, purses additional scarves....My goal was to make the items so fabulous they become addictive so people want to have a say in what they get next - therefore turning them into the designer as well!

Professionally, I would like KissMyStyle.com to become so successful that I can focus strictly on it. I would love to become a top 5 place to shop for handmade pieces - and I would love to increase my number of artists that sell on KMS into the thousand's! Eventually a brick and mortar shop is the ultimate goal.

Visit www.kissmystyle.com Clarks Summit, Pennsylvania

Beth Anderson is the Editor in Chief of Chic Galleria.com and Co-Owner of Chic Galleria Publications.